150 Enter Art Fair On July 6

More than 150 artists, craftsmen and antique dealers have signed up for the 3rd annual Chamber of Commerce Arts, Crafts and Antique Fair Sunday, July 6.

They will be flocking to the village parking lot near the water tower and will attract perhaps thousands of buyers and lookers between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

About 50 more spaces are available from the Chamber for those who want to rent them and display their wares.

Many local groups are reserving space, such as the Bicentennial Commission, the Boy Scouts, the Mental Health Association and the Antioch Women's Club.

There also will be hot dog, popcorn and soft drink stands.

The artists will be competing for $450 in cash prizes. The "best of show" prize is $150.

The deadline for reserving space is Sunday. After that there will be a $1 late registration charge. Right now, the fee is $7 for a 12-foot space.

Last year the works of art and other displays were on the sidewalks of the business district, but the Chamber decided to centralize the fair in one area this year.

Good Move, "Chic"

We'd like to compliment the Lake County Sheriff's Department on its decision not to have a display booth at the Lake County Fair this year.

Sheriff E. J. "Chic" La Magdeleine said he met with his staff and they decided the expenses and man power expended for the five days should be used more effectively.

"The expense could amount to approximately $2,655 which would include $255 for the cost of the booth rental and the balance for salaries to pay the manpower and pamphlets for the public. We are also concerned about the fact that we are a Lake County entity and a non-profit organization, which makes the cost of the booth space seem somewhat excessive and unrealistic," the sheriff said.

It was decided that any community relations benefit could best be accomplished by direct police activities on the beat and not tying up manpower at the fair. It is presumed that the general public will understand the department's position.

American Roulette

Two hundred years after the beginning of the American Revolution, traffic accidents have become a greater threat to American lives than were British guns in 1775.

More Americans may die in traffic accidents during the coming Independence Day holiday than were killed in the battles of Lexington, Concord and Bunker Hill in the first three months of the Revolutionary War.

Approximately 200 Americans lost their lives in those conflicts. By comparison, between 480 and 580 persons may lose their lives in traffic accidents over the holiday weekend, beginning at 6 p.m. Thursday, July 3, and ending at midnight Sunday, July 6. An additional 22,000 to 27,000 disabling injuries might result from holiday traffic mishaps.

A comparable, non-holiday period in July can be expected to produce 430 traffic fatalities and 20,000 disabling injuries. More responsible use of alcohol could make the highways safer over the holiday.

The best policy for a motorist who plans to drink is to also plan for someone else to do the driving. If that isn't feasible, a driver should allow one hour of waiting time for each drink he takes before he gets behind the wheel of his car. That time will allow the alcohol to be eliminated from his body so that he can drive safely.

Holiday travelers should use safety belts, and they should protect riders under five-years-old by placing them in properly-installed, approved child restraints, available at auto dealers and some juvenile and department stores.

Keeping Cool

Although most of the electricity it supplies to northern Illinois homes and industries comes from coal and nuclear power, Commonwealth Edison Company still advises customers to be thrifty in their use of cooling power during the summer months.

The electric company points out that good insulation and tight weather-stripping can save householders energy and money in the operation of air conditioning systems. Keeping storm windows in place for the summer is also a good idea. particularly in homes with central cooling systems.

Other suggestions from Edison include:

-Clean filters regularly. Dirty filters cause cooling units to work harder, run longer and use more electricity.

-Don't allow rooms to become overheated before turning on the cooling unit. A constant thermostat setting is preferable to frequent adjustments and the higher the setting the lower the operating costs.

-Cut down on moisture-making household activities during the hot periods of the day. Operate laundry appliances or dishwashers in the early morning or after sunset.

-When buying a new air conditioner, look for models with high energy efficienty ratios (EER). This tells you how much cooling capacity you get for each watt of electricity. Edison recommends an EER of at least 8. For example, a 1,000-watt unit that delivers 8,000 BTU's of cooling.

Just the other night we were passed by three motorcyclists, apparently thirsty and in a hurry to reach their favorite Kenosha county saloon. They probably were moving at 70 miles an hour - the first passed us on the left and the next two on the right, on the dirt shoulder...

Twice in the past year we almost got creamed on that two-lane track when drivers from the opposite direction crossed the center line.

That's not only one of the Gateways to Wisconsin, but a good route to the Pearly Gates.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE had an interesting article in which Outlaw Butch Cassidy's 91-year-old sister was quoted as saying that Butch and his sidekick, the Sundance Kid. were not killed in 1909 in a shootout with army troops in Bolivia.

She said that Butch, the train robber, returned to the United States, went straight under an alias, and lived to a ripe old age. So did Sundance and his girlfriend, Etta Place, according to this new report.

This comes as a great relief to those of us who felt so badly about the way Paul Newman and Robert Redford died in that super movie, "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid."

EVEN THOUGH Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus weren't playing particularly well in the U.S. golf tournament in Chicago last week, the thousands of fans circling the greens gave them tremendous ovations each time they walked up from the fairways.

Auto Mishaps Injure 5

Four Antioch residents and a Lake Villa woman were injured in separate automobile and motorcycle accidents last week-

According to the Lake County Sheriff's Department, Norman L. VanRooyen, 28, of Rt. 2, Box 562, was hurt last Friday when he was thrown from his motorcycle after apparently losing control. The accident happened on Rt. 59, south of Rt. 173 near Antioch. VanRooyen was taken to a Waukegan hospital for treatment of his injuries.

Deputies also said that Lawrence E. Loef, 20, of 355 Hazelwood Drive, was injured in a two-car accident at Rt. 59 and Rt. 132 near Lake Villa on Sunday. He also was treated at a Waukegan hospital. Police cited the other driver for failing to yield the right-of-way in

Donald Purfeerst, 45, of 222 Hickory Lane, was injured in a two-car accident at Routes 12 and 134 near Fox Lake Sunday. He was treated at McHenry Hospital. Sheriff's deputies cited the driver of the other car. a 20-year-old Chicagoan, for disobeying a traffic light.

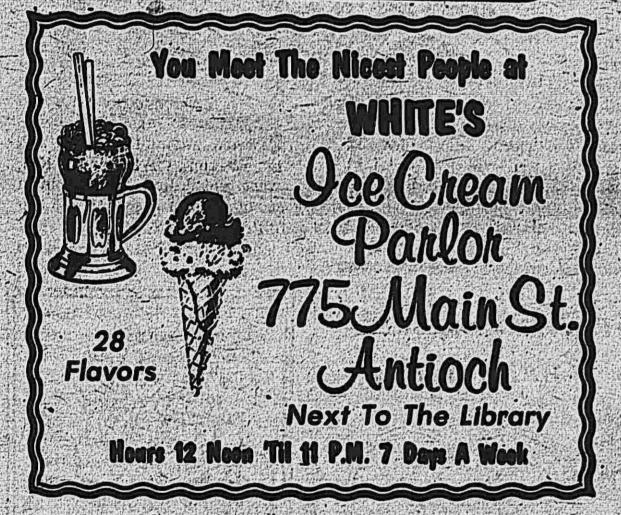

A 14-year-old Antioch youth. Trent Tobias of Rt. 5; Hickory St., was hurt when his mini-bike was hit by a car at Gages Lake Road on Sunday. Trent was treated at St. Therese hospital. Authorities said the driver of the car fled before they arrived.

Irene M. Loehrt, 76, of rural Lake Villa was injured Saturday when her car was struck from behind by an Arlington Heights motorist. She was treated at St. Therese and the other driver was charged with failing to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

BARRY GOLDWATER

Something Lacking In These Students

By SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER

It wouldn't hurt some English teachers in the Washington, D.C., school system to have their students spell the word "kindness" several thousand times. After that, they should be required to look up Webster's definition of the word and copy that down several hundred times.

I offer this as an exercise that might - notice that I said "might" - help conditions in the nation's capital's downtown area.

It certainly is not the whole answer to what occurred in Washington on - of all times - "Human Kindness Day." Believe me, more than just school kids were involved in the disgraceful spectacle which cost Steven Laine, a nonparticipant trying to get to work, the loss of an eye. Even so, the schools are one place where a segment of the activists came from.

ONE LIBERAL wrote to The Washington Post and submitted a rundown of the same old arguments.

After blaming the events of Human Kindness Day on "young kids who hate without knowing why," she goes on to say: "Let's - demand gun control, better elementary education, more remedial reading teachers in the high schools, more changes for black and white kids to meet in a neutral setting." She says it just as though these things had never before entered the minds of Washington's leaders.

And she says it as though anyone not born and brought up in Washington are transients with no interest in the city. Her letter continues:

"No, the people who live in and love this city, the people who call it home, they are the ones who should be looking to themselves for solutions."
President Ford and "those congressmen" she writes, are not from D.C. Their main concern is not D.C. "These people are at best transients here."

I'LL BUY the idea that "people who call it home" have the heaviest job of seeking solutions, but I don't accept the argument that out-of-towners have no interest in the city.

After all it's our national capital, too, and "those congressmen on The Hill" have every reason to concern themselves with a civic situation which allowed Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.) to be shot and nearly killed right in front of his residence.

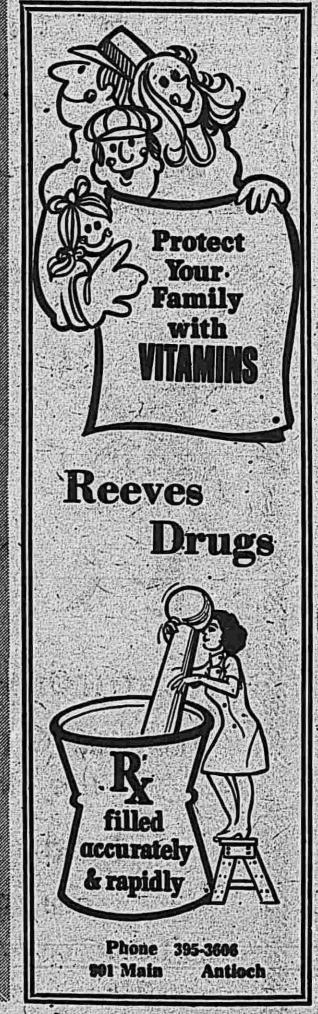

What's more, we have a right to demand some voice in public demonstrations, whether they be for 'human kindness' or some other purpose.

"Hallelujah! Wake up, Margaret! We've left yesterday far behind, crossed through the dark and gloom of hight, and made our way safely into a new day!"

Local Group Focuses on Drug Abuse

By BETSY ROSSEN

Do you believe alcohol and drug use by young people is increasing? An Antioch-based group says yes.

So do 59 out of 59 individuals surveyed at an awareness program sponsored last month by the group, the Lake Region Chapter on Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

In September of 1974 a number of concerned parents. local officials and professional people began meeting to determine the extent of the problem in the community. The chapter was formed this year with a stated purpose "To inform and educate parents and interested adults as well as help parents and children with special needs find the appropriate help and counseling."

REACTION TO the program is considered quite positive by the chapter officers, Gerry Andre, Lois Bachochin, Frank Johnson, Alan Knutsen, Jean Lehman and Lowel Lloyd. Though half the respondents thought they would be able to tell if their child had been using drugs, a unanimous "yes" was given to the question, "Do you feel there is a need for a help organization in your community to provide advice and counseling on drugs?"

The chapter meets the fourth Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at the State Bank of Antioch and welcomes new members.

Officers recently set the following chapter goals and objectives:

1. Improve community and parent education through talks, programs, films and literature.

2. Aid community self-help (family counseling and interaction).

3. Coordinate professional segments of the community. 4. Enhance existing high school counseling capacity. 5. Develop a directory of all Lake County resources.

"WE WANT to get down to where the people are," a chapter spokesman says. "We want to have a grip on the local situation, then move up to higher levels. It's our purpose to be of maximum service to the community through education, counseling and rehabilitation."

Working, with the Lake County councils on both alcoholism and drug abuse has been a major thrust of the local chapter. Rather than officially incorporating, they have chosen to become a chapter of the two councils, and associate also with the Waukegan health clinic on Belvidere Road (the former tuberculosis sanitarium).

Among the plans to meet the established goals are:

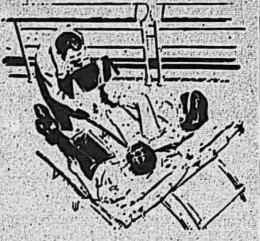

1. Placing literature in public places.

2. Sending Antioch Community High School seniors Becky Garrison and Phil Toal to the Teen-Age Institute on Substance Abuse and high school staff member Jane Kelinschmidt to a drug counseling program.

3. Organizing a panel of concerned citizens and knowledgeable community leaders to present programs to local organizations about the abuse situation in general and Antioch's problem in particular. The presentation would be in 30 and 60-minute forms, composed of a film, question and answer session and discussion of the purposes and objectives of the Lake Region Chapter.

Further information on the organization and work of the group can be obtained by contacting the Lake Region Chapter on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, P.O. Box U. Antioch.

CHANNEL LAKE CHATTER

By LOUISE GUTOWSKI

Well, school is out, the kids are driving us crazy, and maybe the rains will stop soon. This past weekend, except for a little too much heat, was really great wasn't it?

The staff of Channel Lake school lunched at Fox Lake Country Club on the last day of school. The group included Paul Hain, Marge Girten, Judy Robinson, Sheila Eisen, Jean Soby, Betsy Houghton, Pat Harland, Lorraine Lemke and Louise Gutowski. Everyone bid each other well for the summer until we are all back to work the end of August.

Mrs. Judy Robinson, our 4th grade teacher will not be returning as she will be teaching vocal music at Oakland grade school in the fall. And Pat Harland, who has been the school librarian for many years, is retiring and will be replaced by Mrs. Kathy Rogers.

The last full day of school saw the Channel Lake PTO sponsoring the annual picnic lunch for the children. After lunch, honors were awarded. Among them were perfect attendance pins to Billy Corey of kindergarten and Amy Rogers of 3rd grade. Jenny Smith won the growing contest in first grade by growing two inches during the year and Cindy Willtee received a special award for only missing one day of school.

Two second graders received awards for giving the most book reports. They were Gina Franz and Vicky DeWitt who tied with 15 each.

After the awards the children were treated to an afternoon of games, conducted by the room mothers.

MAGNETIC NAME

Adlai for president?

By RICHARD CRABB

CHICAGO — Illinois has a bonafide potential presidential candidate. No other Midwest state has one, and that may as early as 1976 prove to be significant.

Next to Edward Kennedy, the senator of Illinois has the most magnetic name associated with the Democratic Party in the U.S. It is a name that on a presidential ballot would assure a percentage of the votes before the polls open.

The Adlai Stevenson name was powerful in American political circles long before anyone had heard of John, Robert or Edward Kennedy.

Adlai Stevenson I was vice president of the United States with President Cleveland in the first Democratic administration after the Civil War.

Stevenson also ran for vice president with William Jennings Bryan, another Illinois native transplanted to Nebraska.

Adlai Stevenson No. 2 was elected governor of Illinois in 1948, and then twice took on the impossible assignment of opposing Dwight Eisenhower for the presidency.

Leaders in his party proposed that he run for president again in 1960, and when Stevenson rejected the idea they turned to John Kennedy.

The little-known Kennedy won the presidency from Richard Nixon with a margin of far fewer votes than when Richard Daley recently was re-elected mayor of Chicago.

Stevenson's friends understandably think that he could have easily won in 1960 had he only shown an interest in running for president a third time. Instead Stevenson worked for John Kennedy and eventually was named Ambassador to the United Nations.

The most dramatic moment of his entire career in public service came when he unexpectedly demanded the floor at a meeting of the U.N. Security Council during the Cuban missile crisis.

Stevenson followed the Russian ambassador at the microphone and did an unprecedented thing. In plain Midwest language, he charged the Russian with lying to the U.N. and the world about there not being Russian missiles in Cuba with U.S. cities in their sights.

As he spoke, aides were unfolding a huge aerial picture showing a photograph, taken over Cuba only hours before, and plainly showing loaded missile launching pads with additional missiles stacked beside them. The Russian spokesman was unable to reply.

Cruises - top travel value of which we are all out looking for. A pleasure cruise has to be one of the world's best recreation values on the market today. It is for this reason the various ship lines are steaming ahead with healthy conditions while other branches are having hard times.

Value for money, satisfaction for dollars spent, and a good time seems to be what the public is looking for today.

On the newer, smaller queens of the sea, it's not unusual to find the room steward and other crew members to remember your face on the second day of your cruise. Cabin stewards and stewardsses still smile "Good morning" rather than starting the day with a snarl.

Ocean-going chefs still compete for the glories of their cuisines and meals are served with a great deal of care and concern instead of carelessness. On ships it's not considered quixotic to sleep undisturbed until noon and take tea and sandwiches at midnight.

True, I'm talking about the good ships of the good cruise lines. They may be expensive at initial examination; but not when you compare costs to those of eating, drinking and sleeping in any top hotel in the world, and the hotel isn't going anywhere. Also, most of the hotels can't compare their service with the same class of in which the issue of war or peace between Russia and the United States hung precariously in the balance. The Russians finally acknowledged that they had atomic armed missiles in Cuba ready to level cities from New York to Denver and New Orleans to Minneapolis, and agreed to take them back to Russia immediately.

Adlai Stevenson may have saved millions of American lives by his forthright handling of the crisis.

Meanwhile Adlai Stevenson III was running for the Illinois legislature, later the state treasurer's office and finally for U.S. Senator, winning by margins that ranged from "comfortable" to land-slides.

Carrying on the longest political family tradition in modern American politics, friends believe that Adlai II is certain to figure in the U.S. presidential picture sooner or later. In his early 40s, Stevenson is showing restraint, apparently realizing that time can be on his side.

His present position is one of openness. If the men contending for the 1976 Presidential nomination, men like Jackson and Wallace, seal off one another, Adlai Stevenson admits he would be available and eager.

that aboard ship.

Another great feature is that you only unpack and pack once. No big hastle with airports, cabs, etc., every other day or so. This type of vacation is not only a great travel value for money but also a very relaxing type of vacation. No phones, traffic, airplanes, rush-rush of the morning work crowd to observe. By the second day one begins to feel human and the body is very relaxed.

For something different, why not try a cruise? They can be taken for the number of days you want and also just about anywhere in the world. Happy cruising.

Jamie pushed for poster

THE ANTIOCH NEWS

By NANCY ANDERSON

HOLLYWOOD — Missourians are pushing Jamie Farr, the guy who wears a dress in "M-A-S-H," for poster boy for a national campaign to promote traffic safety.

"I just came back from the Missouri Governor's Conference on Highway Safety," Jamie reports. "They're using the theme from 'M-A-S-H,' but in Missouri, instead of standing for 'Mobile Army Surgical Hospital,' 'M-A-S-H' stands for 'Missourians for Active Safety on the Highways.'

"And a lot of people I met are trying to get them to use me in a dress on a national highway safety poster with the slogan, 'Don't let this accident happen to you.'

"I told the governor I deserve a safety award because I have a perfect record; though not for driving. I have a perfect record for walking because I've never once fallen off those high heels."

Though he's always seen in a dress on television, Farr says his suit is no disguise and that "M-A-S-H" fans generally recognize him.

"But I get some comments," he says. "People call me 'miz' and, if I'm in the men's department, someone may say, 'You are on the wrong floor.'

"I've heard all the jokes, but I don't mind them at all, because I feel that if anyone jokes with you, they like you, and they want to get to know you."

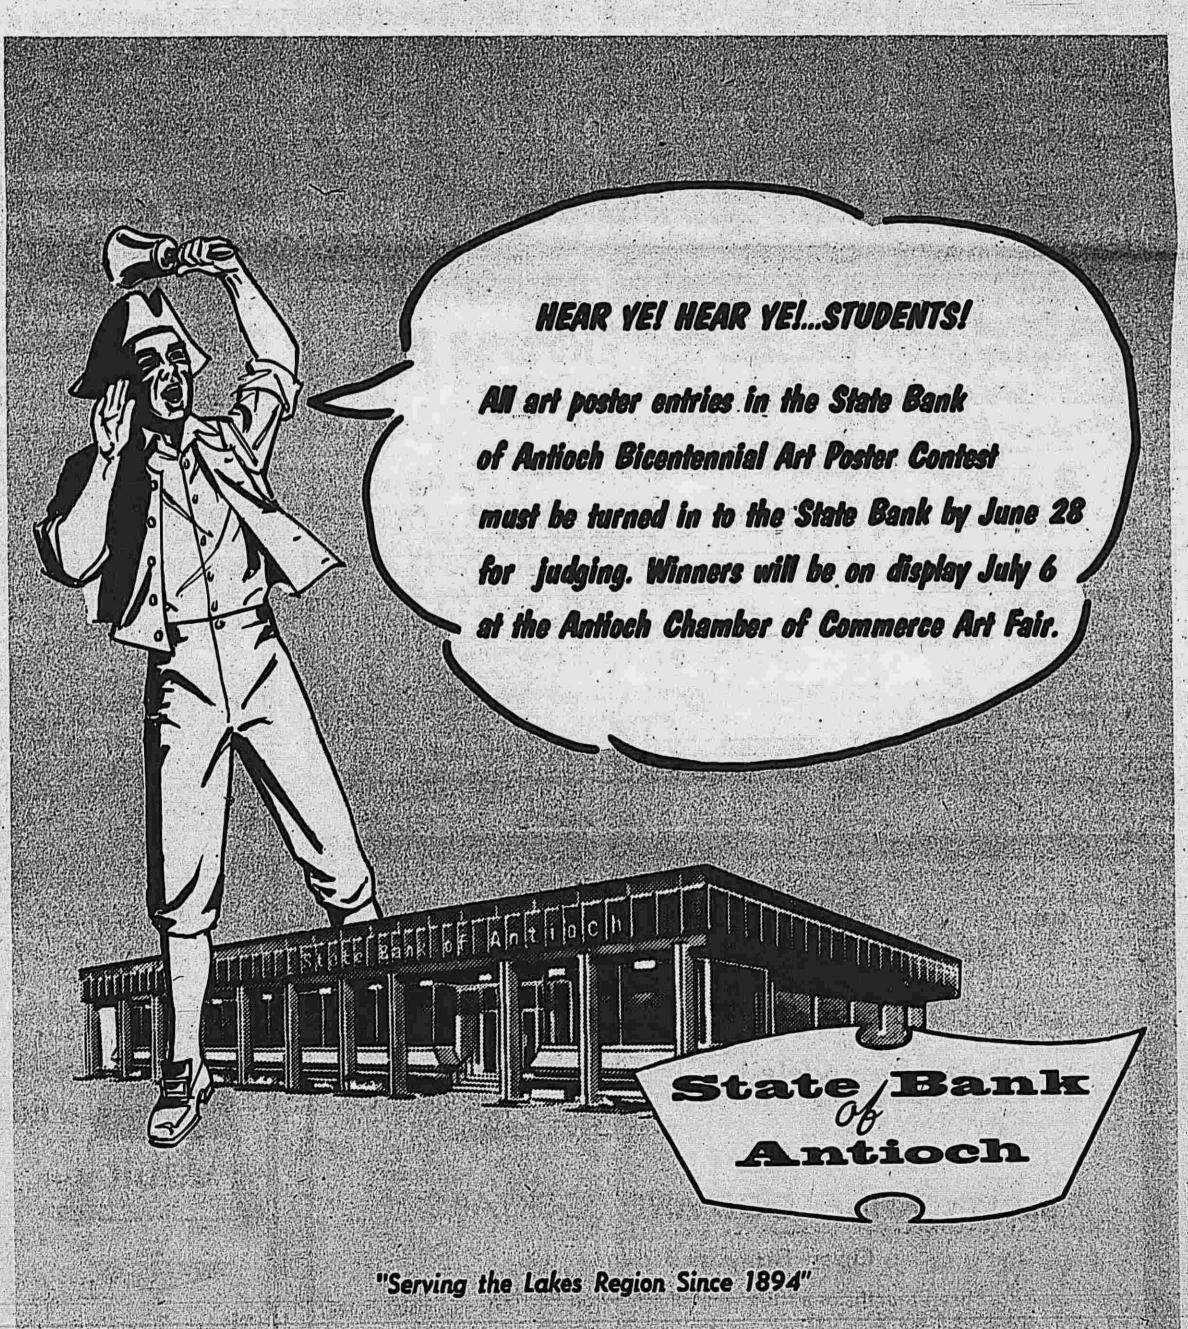

Asked to describe his fashion "look" on "M-A-S-H," Jamie says, "It's called

'tacky.' Sometimes we get the clothes off the rack, but some of them are actually designed for me."

Currently Farr is putting together a nightclub act which will include his television character.

Don Knotts recalls his soap opera days

HOLLYWOOD - Don Knotts, the shaky deputy sheriff in Andy Griffith's first television series, hasn't gone back to Mayberry, but he has returned to small town life in "Harry and Maggie," a CBS-TV comedy which may spin into a weekly show.

In it, Knotts portrays the widower-owner of a village. hardware store, plagued by the antics of his unorthodox sister-in-law, played by Eve Arden.

Since Knotts has become so thoroughly identified with comedy, most TV afficianados have forgotten that he was a soap opera star for three years (1956-58) playing traumatized Wilbur Peterson in "Search for Tomorrow."

Lee Grant, who also went on to better things, played his sister.

"My character was very neurotic," Don recalls, "and one of his neuroses was he couldn't talk unless his sister was around."

Though soap operas have armies of devoted fans, Don found out that his wife wasn't among them one day after he played a scene with an actor named Les.

In those days, whatever went on in the studio during soap opera production was what the viewers saw. No matter how horrendous the mistakes, they went out to the homes of the nation.

One day. Don as the neurotic Wilbur was playing a scene with Les who suddenly and completely forgot his lines.

The prompter was so immobilized by this development that he, too, forgot his next responsibility and did nothing.

Finally, though, he came to life and shouted a line.

"What?" Les shouted back as the cameras rolled. "What was that again?"

At this juncture, Don spoke

"What's going on here?" he wanted to know. "Is this a rehearsal or are we on the air?"

They were. "When I got home that night." Knotts finishes the story, I asked my wife, 'Well,

"'It was fine," she said.

"I knew then that she never turned it on."

Knotts expects to make a Disney film, "Gus," in which he'll play - of all things - a football coach.

"Gus" isn't the coach's name but the name of another character in the picture, a mule who can kick field goals.

Driver Thrills Wilmot Fans

Veteran driver Dick Colburn was back in the winners' ranks in the 25-lap feature for super modified race cars Saturday night at Kenosha County Speedway in Wilmot, but the real show was going on back in the pack.

Colburn started on the inside of the third row of the 18-car starting grid and quickly took possession of the lead, his only threat coming from the radical new car of Carman Manzardo, which moved up from the sixth row to challenge late in the race.

But most fans were more interested in watching sprint car driver Dick St. John, who had earlier set fast qualifying time. St. John's car was damaged slightly in the early going when several cars collided trying to avoid the stalled machine of Bill Portalski.

St. John went halfway around the third-mile oval, then climbed from his car to check it out. He then sped from the track and roared back out, minus his engine cowl, a few minutes later. But he was now a half lap behind the pack.

St. John put on a display of driving which had the capacity crowd on the edge of their seats. With his foot to the floor, he flew around the track and within a few laps was passing cars at an average of one or two per lap.

But after eight laps of driving on the ragged edge, he finally lost it and spun in the third turn. Once again he took off after the pack and managed to pass four cars before the checkered flag finally dropped.

Sid Norton once again dominated sportsman competition, taking fast qualifying time and then driving a flawless feature race.

And the season's first powder puff derby and demolition derby are included on the Friday program. A roll-over contest will be presented as part of the variety package.

Saturday night July 5, the late models will be back in action.

On Sunday night, July 6, the Carling Independence 50-lap championship race will be run for the late model stocks. Both Tom Jones, winner of the May 26 50-lapper, and Bob Dotter, winner of the 50-lap race June 7, are entered along with Ray Young, the current leader in the Chicagoland Driving Championship point race.

Time trials start at 7:15 all nights with racing at 8 p.m. The late models will race in 30-lap features this Saturday and Sunday in a final tune-up before the holiday specials.

The largest crowd of the season saw a wild night of racing last Saturday at the Speedway.

Tom Jones won the 30-lap late model feature after taking the lead for good with just five laps remaining.

Rain was the big winner Sunday night as a storm hit the track after time trials and six events were run.

Lightning struck an electrical transformer and put half the track in darkness. The rains continued and the balance of the program was postponed until this Sunday night.

Watson Wins Big At Lake Geneva

LAKE GENEVA, WIS. - Dave Watson, Beloit, made his first racing visit to the Lake Geneva Raceway Saturday night and went home a winner of not only the 30 lap feature race, but the Trophy Dash as well.

Watson took the lead on the 16th lap of the feature. Early leader Gary Kreiger, Fort Akinson, stayed in second place and held a hard charging group back until he spun on the 24th lap. By then Watson had nearly a half lap lead in his Camaro.

Allen Kulwicki, Milwaukee, took second followed by Red Hutchinson, Vern Browne and point leader Al Schill.

The largest crowd of the season saw Tom Talbolt, Mundelein, win the 15 lap semi-feature.

Bob Delaney looked like a sure winner in the first heat but spun on the final corner and set up a wide dash for the trailing cars with Ron Nevalyet beating out Scott Leibnow.

Schill set fast time for the field of late models and J.P. Weinke, Bristol, set fast time in the sportsman stock car class and then came back to win the 25 lap feature.

Bill Pierce, Wilmot, took second in the feature.

Schill leads late model point standings with 395. Vern Browne of Libertyville is second with 294 and Jack Ester of Antioch sixth with 186.

Lake Geneva Track Plans July 3 Races

LAKE GENEVA, Wis. - A pre-holiday late model stock car 50-lap feature race has been set for Thursday night, July 3, at the Lake Geneva Raceway.

To attract the return of the several "top names" that recently visited the Saturday night racing action, $250 has been pledged as lap prize money for leaders in the track's longest race so far this season.

Point leader Al Schill, Franklin, and runner-up Vern Browne, Libertyville, each in Camaros, will be favored but Ed Hoffman, Niles, could be a threat.

In addition to the late models, the sportsman and spectator stocks will also race. Their feature distances will be 25 and 15 laps.

The same group will be in action on Saturday night, July 5. Then on Sunday night, July 6, the track will host a special "Battle of the Speedways" night for the All-American late model stock cars. This racing started this season at Lake Geneva and features cars from area tracks that have been active only on Saturday nights. Sunday night, they converge on the Lake Geneva Raceway and so far the results have been a bonus for the fans.

Sink this one, Vern, and you'll break a hundred.

Learn practice against backboard

By ED COLLINS

Learning how to play this game is not always easy. When first starting, the toughest task is finding someone to practice with. And nobody likes to play with a beginner: What to do. ...

The only alternative is to introduce yourself to the local backboard. Actually, the backboard may be your best source of practice. After all, it never makes a mistake.

The following lessons can help the beginner get started — the intermediate improve and the champ review.

The beginning player should familiarize himself with the point of contact position. One of the first lessons on the groundstrokes is learning to meet the ball well in front of the body.

To practice this, stand eight feet from the backboard in the forehand P.O.C. position. The racquet is placed in front of the left hip, parallel to the ground. The left foot is forward and the knee bent.

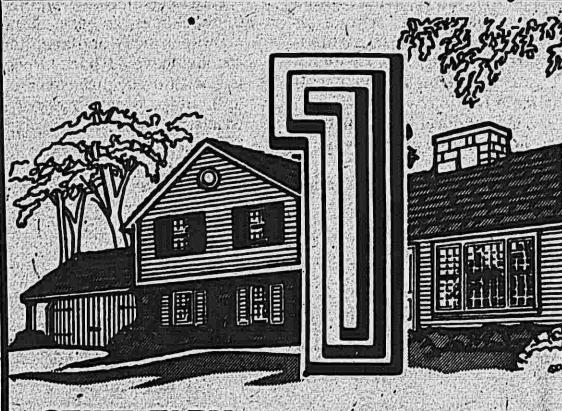

Tap the ball against the board and see how long you can continue the rally. When you start to lose control stop. Don't swing at the ball touch it.

Watch the ball meet the racquet. Keep the ball in play until you can't hold the racquet head up. This is also an excellent drill to increase grip strength.

CUTTING THE RIBBON to open the Allendale School for Boys' Art Show at the State Bank of Antioch last week were Terry Larson, recreation specialist; Kanwarjit Singh, recreation director; Robert C. Wilton, Antioch's mayor, and William E. Brook, president of the State Bank.

As you improve and become familiar with the proper technique for the strokes, utilize the backboard for some excellent practice routines. Stand 20 feet away from the board or far enough so the ball bounces twice before playing it. The main complaint people have against backboard practice is that the ball comes back too fast.

If you swing gently and allow the ball to bounce twice you'll have plenty of time. As you practice the groundstrokes, return to a ready position, making sure you complete the follow-through.

On the forehand your hand should finish at eye level in

the racquet pointing straight up. On the backhand lift your hand to the level of your forehead, with your armpit, exposed: Remember to keep your eyes momentarily on the point of contact position. (Develop this "habit" — it's a good one.)

A fun drill is to see how many consecutive ground-strokes you can hit against the backboard, alternating forehands and backhands. If you make it to 100, you're doing fantastic.

Learning to volley against the backboard is easy. Stand eight feet away and keep the racquet beveled back. Practice with a racquet cover on and help develop strong wrists.

The advanced player can practice his overhead against the backboard. Aim at a spot in front of the wall so the ball hits and rebounds up in the air. Try to keep it going.

Opportunity has to knock, but it is enough for temptation just to stand outside and whistle.

R For Garden Ailments

THE MIGHTY MITE

If your garden is ailing and you have reason to suspect that a bug is the cause, then it's logical to apply an effective, broad spectrum insecticide, that will control a wide range of bugs.

Perhaps it's mites. If the undersides of leaves have a mealy appearance with black specks, it is probable that your garden is infested with mites. Because they suck vital substances, mites cause leaves to become gray, yellow, reddish, and to drop off branches quickly. Mites multiply rapidly in warm humid weather. They are perhaps the smallest and most numerous garden pest. One species or other feeds on every garden plant. The common red spider mite can be identified by its fine web. Adult mites have four pairs of legs, no wings, are 1/60 inch long, pale yellow, green or red, and may have two dark spots.

To control mites, you can use an effective insecticide to reduce populations before they have a chance to build up. Ciba-Geigy's Spectracide controls mites — plus more than 120 other kinds of insects—and you can spray or dust it on plants for their protection.
